The UB School of Pharmacy & Pharmaceutical Sciences is recruiting for faculty Division Heads. These positions will be four new strategic division leader positions in the Departments of Pharmacy Practice and Pharmaceutical Sciences.

The Division Head Positions will be available in the following focus areas:

- Pharmaceutical Sciences:
 - Drug Discovery and Design
 - Molecular Pharmaceutics and Pharmaceutical Engineering
- Pharmacy Practice:
 - Clinical and Translational Therapeutics
 - Outcomes and Practice Advancement

Research specialty/focus areas:

Pharmaceutical Sciences:

Medicinal and biological chemistry; quantitative chemistry and molecular modeling; target identification; biologically based drug delivery; pharmaco-engineering and materials science; protein engineering; quantitative systems pharmacology; clinical pharmacology.

Pharmacy Practice:

Clinical and translational research (focus area flexible); health outcomes.

Divisional Leadership Responsibilities:

Provide strategic leadership and engage faculty and other stakeholders in realizing the SPPS strategic plan with a focus on the advancement of research while contributing to the educational and if applicable, the practice mission of the School. Serve as primary representative of the Division in all school related activities and oversee all divisional personnel and finance activities.

Scholarship/Research Responsibilities:

Faculty members will develop and engage in independent and collaborative scholarly activities in their relevant area of expertise. Collaborative scholarship is strongly encouraged among faculty colleagues within the school and across the university.

Teaching Responsibilities:

Faculty members will contribute to one or more of the school's degree programs (PharmD, PhD, MS, or BS) based on area of specialization and alignment with course delivery needs.
