University of Arkansas for Medical Sciences
College of Pharmacy

The University of Arkansas for Medical Sciences (UAMS) College of Pharmacy invites applications for a 12-month, tenure track faculty position in the Division of Pharmaceutical Evaluation & Policy (PEP). This position is available immediately, and the successful candidate's experience and qualifications will determine the appointment as an assistant, associate, or full professor.

The successful candidate's primary responsibilities will be to develop a new or integrate an existing extramurally funded independent research program with PEP, teach in the graduate and professional programs, provide graduate student mentorship, and provide service to the college, university, and profession. Applicants must have a PhD in a health-related field focused on economics, epidemiology, health outcomes, health policy, biostatistics, informatics, or implementation science.

PEP engages in impactful research to inform health policy, improve health care delivery, and enhance outcomes for diverse populations. Our division collaborates with state, national, and international leaders to evaluate and guide policy development, focusing on pharmaceuticals, pharmacy services, and health system innovations. PEP faculty conduct rigorous research in areas such as health economics, comparative effectiveness research, patient-reported outcomes, epidemiology, and health policy analysis.

PEP's graduate program equips students with advanced analytic skills to address pressing issues in health care. Graduates are prepared for successful careers in health economics and outcomes research across industries, academia, managed care organizations, healthcare payers, and government sectors. The curriculum emphasizes evaluating pharmaceutical effectiveness, value, and safety, aligning with competencies in pharmacy administration, social and administrative sciences, pharmaceutical outcomes and policy, and health services research. By fostering innovation and collaboration, the division contributes to advancing health care practices and policies at all levels.
